The FoNS Residential Programme is characterised by:

- Collaborative and participatory ways of learning and being
- Learning in, from and through the workplace
- Reflective practice
- Facilitative approaches
- Working with values and beliefs
- Understanding person-centredness, valuing all
- Recognising the impact and importance of workplace culture

Thus enabling people to be the nurse or practitioner they wish to be, working authentically and building momentum to create more caring workplace cultures. We know it works, and have seen the impact of the programme time and time again.

If you'd like to be part of this movement, please do get in touch soon, places are very limited. Visit the FoNS Residential Programme pages.

In a nutshell, the programme will help participants to develop knowledge, skills and confidence in facilitating the development of person-centred cultures. It's a combination of theoretical and practical, this combination means participants become creative, autonomous facilitators of culture change in the workplace.
